

2022 Points and Handicapping Structure for Big Diamond Speedway

Modifieds, 602 Crate Sportsman & Roadrunners

- Handicapping will not start until (1) point race has been completed.
- The 1st week will be a draw; handicapping will start the following points race
- If a driver did not race the first week, they will be started at the rear of the qualifying event to earn points.
- Concerns with a driver who is not experienced enough or vehicle capable of starting in their handicapped spot will be addressed on a case by case by the officials
- Feature lineup based on heat results with the current point standings determining the handicap positions; Previous week's winner will start in the last handicapping spot; if a driver who is not eligible for handicapping makes the handicapping invert, that driver would start in the last handicapping spot, behind previous weeks winner.
- Previous week's winner: each winner will serve the "last handicap spot" ruling. If you are not in attendance at the next week's show, the next event you are at and make the handicap, that ruling will be in affect at that time.
- To be eligible for handicapping, driver must have attempted to qualify in at least 1/4 of the point races run AND must have attempted to qualify the previous week. If the number of races run is an odd number, that would be rounded up. For example, if 11 races have been run, driver must have attempted to qualify in 3 of them to be eligible for the handicap.
- Attempt is defined as, making an effort to bring your car on the track for track packing, hot laps, heats, etc.
- Once handicapping starts, the heats will be lined up based on points. For all the drivers that meet the previous rule's criteria, the driver with the least amount of points will start 1st in heat 1 and the next least amount of points will start 1st in heat 2 and so forth. The drivers with the most points that meet the criteria will start towards the back, with any drivers not meeting criteria starting scratch on the field.
- For drivers that are not in attendance, you will be credited with first place feature points for the races you have missed for handicapping purposes. First place points are shown below.
- IF the previous week's feature winner makes the handicapping invert, that driver will start in the last final handicapping position in the feature.
- The maximum number of cars to start any given feature will be 24 cars in all divisions
